THE THATCHED MAN
(Episode The First)

AND MINDS STUDIO INC

There was a little thatched man who lived in the woods in a little thatched house.

Every morning at ten he would go to his front gate (which was locked) to see if the newspaper had come (which it never did); and every afternoon at three he would go to his front gate to see if the mail had arrived (which also never did).

But the little thatched man was not dispirited, because he believed in magic (the good kind); and so many long years tolled past, broken only by the fluttering whistle of owls which he sporadically mistook for magic (rather than merely magical), causing the owls to loud laugh at his expense (for which they felt badly later).
